O. S. K. PUTTING ON MORE VESSELS

Complying with many applications from merchants who, engaged in trade with America, have been seeking more cargo space, The Osaka Shosen Kaisha has put its first extra steamer into service, the Mitsuki Maru, 3,500 tons, for Tacoma, says the Japan Advertiser. The new O. S. K. service, which will include three boats, will run between Kobe and Tacoma, touching only at Yokohama. The company has not announced how long these vessels will be kept in service, but in view of the present freight congestion on the Pacific, the boats probably will be running for several months.

HILONIAN BORE HOODOO HISTORY

"The first time I ever saw the Hilonian she was resting on the bottom of the harbor at Auckland," said Harbor-master William R. Foster yesterday to the Star-Bulletin when informed that the former Matsun boat had been torpedoed off Genoa, Italy. Foster says that he was a mere lad at the time, but he recalls the incident clearly. The Hilonian which at the time bore the name of Triumph had struck a rock and gone down before reaching port. She was raised and later sold to the Matsun Navigation Company.

PACIFIC MAIL MAY GET TWO GERMAN STEAMERS

That in the distribution of the German refugee steamers in the various Pacific ports among the steamship company by the state department, the Pacific Mail Steamship Company is scheduled to get two of those at Manila, is the report which was recently substantiated by ship officers of that company.

JAPAN LIKELY TO CUT SUBSIDIES

The Japanese government has started an investigation into the conditions of the foreign lines of subsidized shipping companies, with the intention of cutting their subsidies when new contracts are concluded with the companies for the fiscal year 1918-19 and 1919-20, says the Japan Advertiser. The new contracts will be concluded before the end of next March, when the present contracts expire.
